"Rain, Rain, go away,
Come again some other day!"

THE first day of the most extensive and ambitious rifle, revolver and pistol match program ever inaugurated on American soil was Monday, August 14—and the night before it rained. Oh, how it rained! inches—nobody knows how many inches of water descended and the patter of the raindrops on the canvas roofs was as the herald of coming other vast watery hosts.

Monday morning came with threats of an all-day storm, but Fate was kind, so that when shooting began a little after eight o'clock only the moist ground and the scent of freshness rain-brought remained as a reminder.

For the program of the first day the Enlisted Men's Team, the Wimbledon Cup, the Individual Rapid Fire and the Skirmish runs of the Governor's Match were scheduled.

The conditions Monday morning were somewhat deceptive. At first glance the targets looked easy but there was an elusive and delusive waver in the air and this taken with the changing light brought a bad glare which came and went making careful attention necessary to the accomplishment of high scoring.

The wind was of very little consequence; it came from the eight o'clock side and barely moved. It accelerated its motion as the day grew older but at no time was it a very serious menace to high scoring. Most of the best shots along the line who got out of the bullseye, did so on elevations.

THE WIMBLETON CUP MATCH.

The contest for the Wimbledon Cup, that grand old match made up of two and twenty at 1000 brought out a fine field of 246 entries. Predictions that a possible would win were frequent before the shooting began, but the prophets were wrong. 98 won this year, not quite so good as last year when 99 was the winning figure with another 99 to follow it.

Capt. G. H. Emerson, 6th Ohio Infantry, won the Wimbledon last year. He annexed it again this year. It begins to look like he intended never to give it up.

Colonel Winder tied him on total last year and did the same thing this. Both Emerson and Winder used telescopic sights and shot the match with special 180-grain match ammunition.

Of the four 98's this year, that of Lieut. G. Van Auken, 2nd Indiana Infantry was next to Emerson in rank; then came Lieut. J. A. Stemple, 2nd Ohio Infantry, followed by Colonel Winder. A solitary 97 was the contribution of Lieut. E. T. Armstrong of the Cavalry. There were four 96's and seven men made 95's.

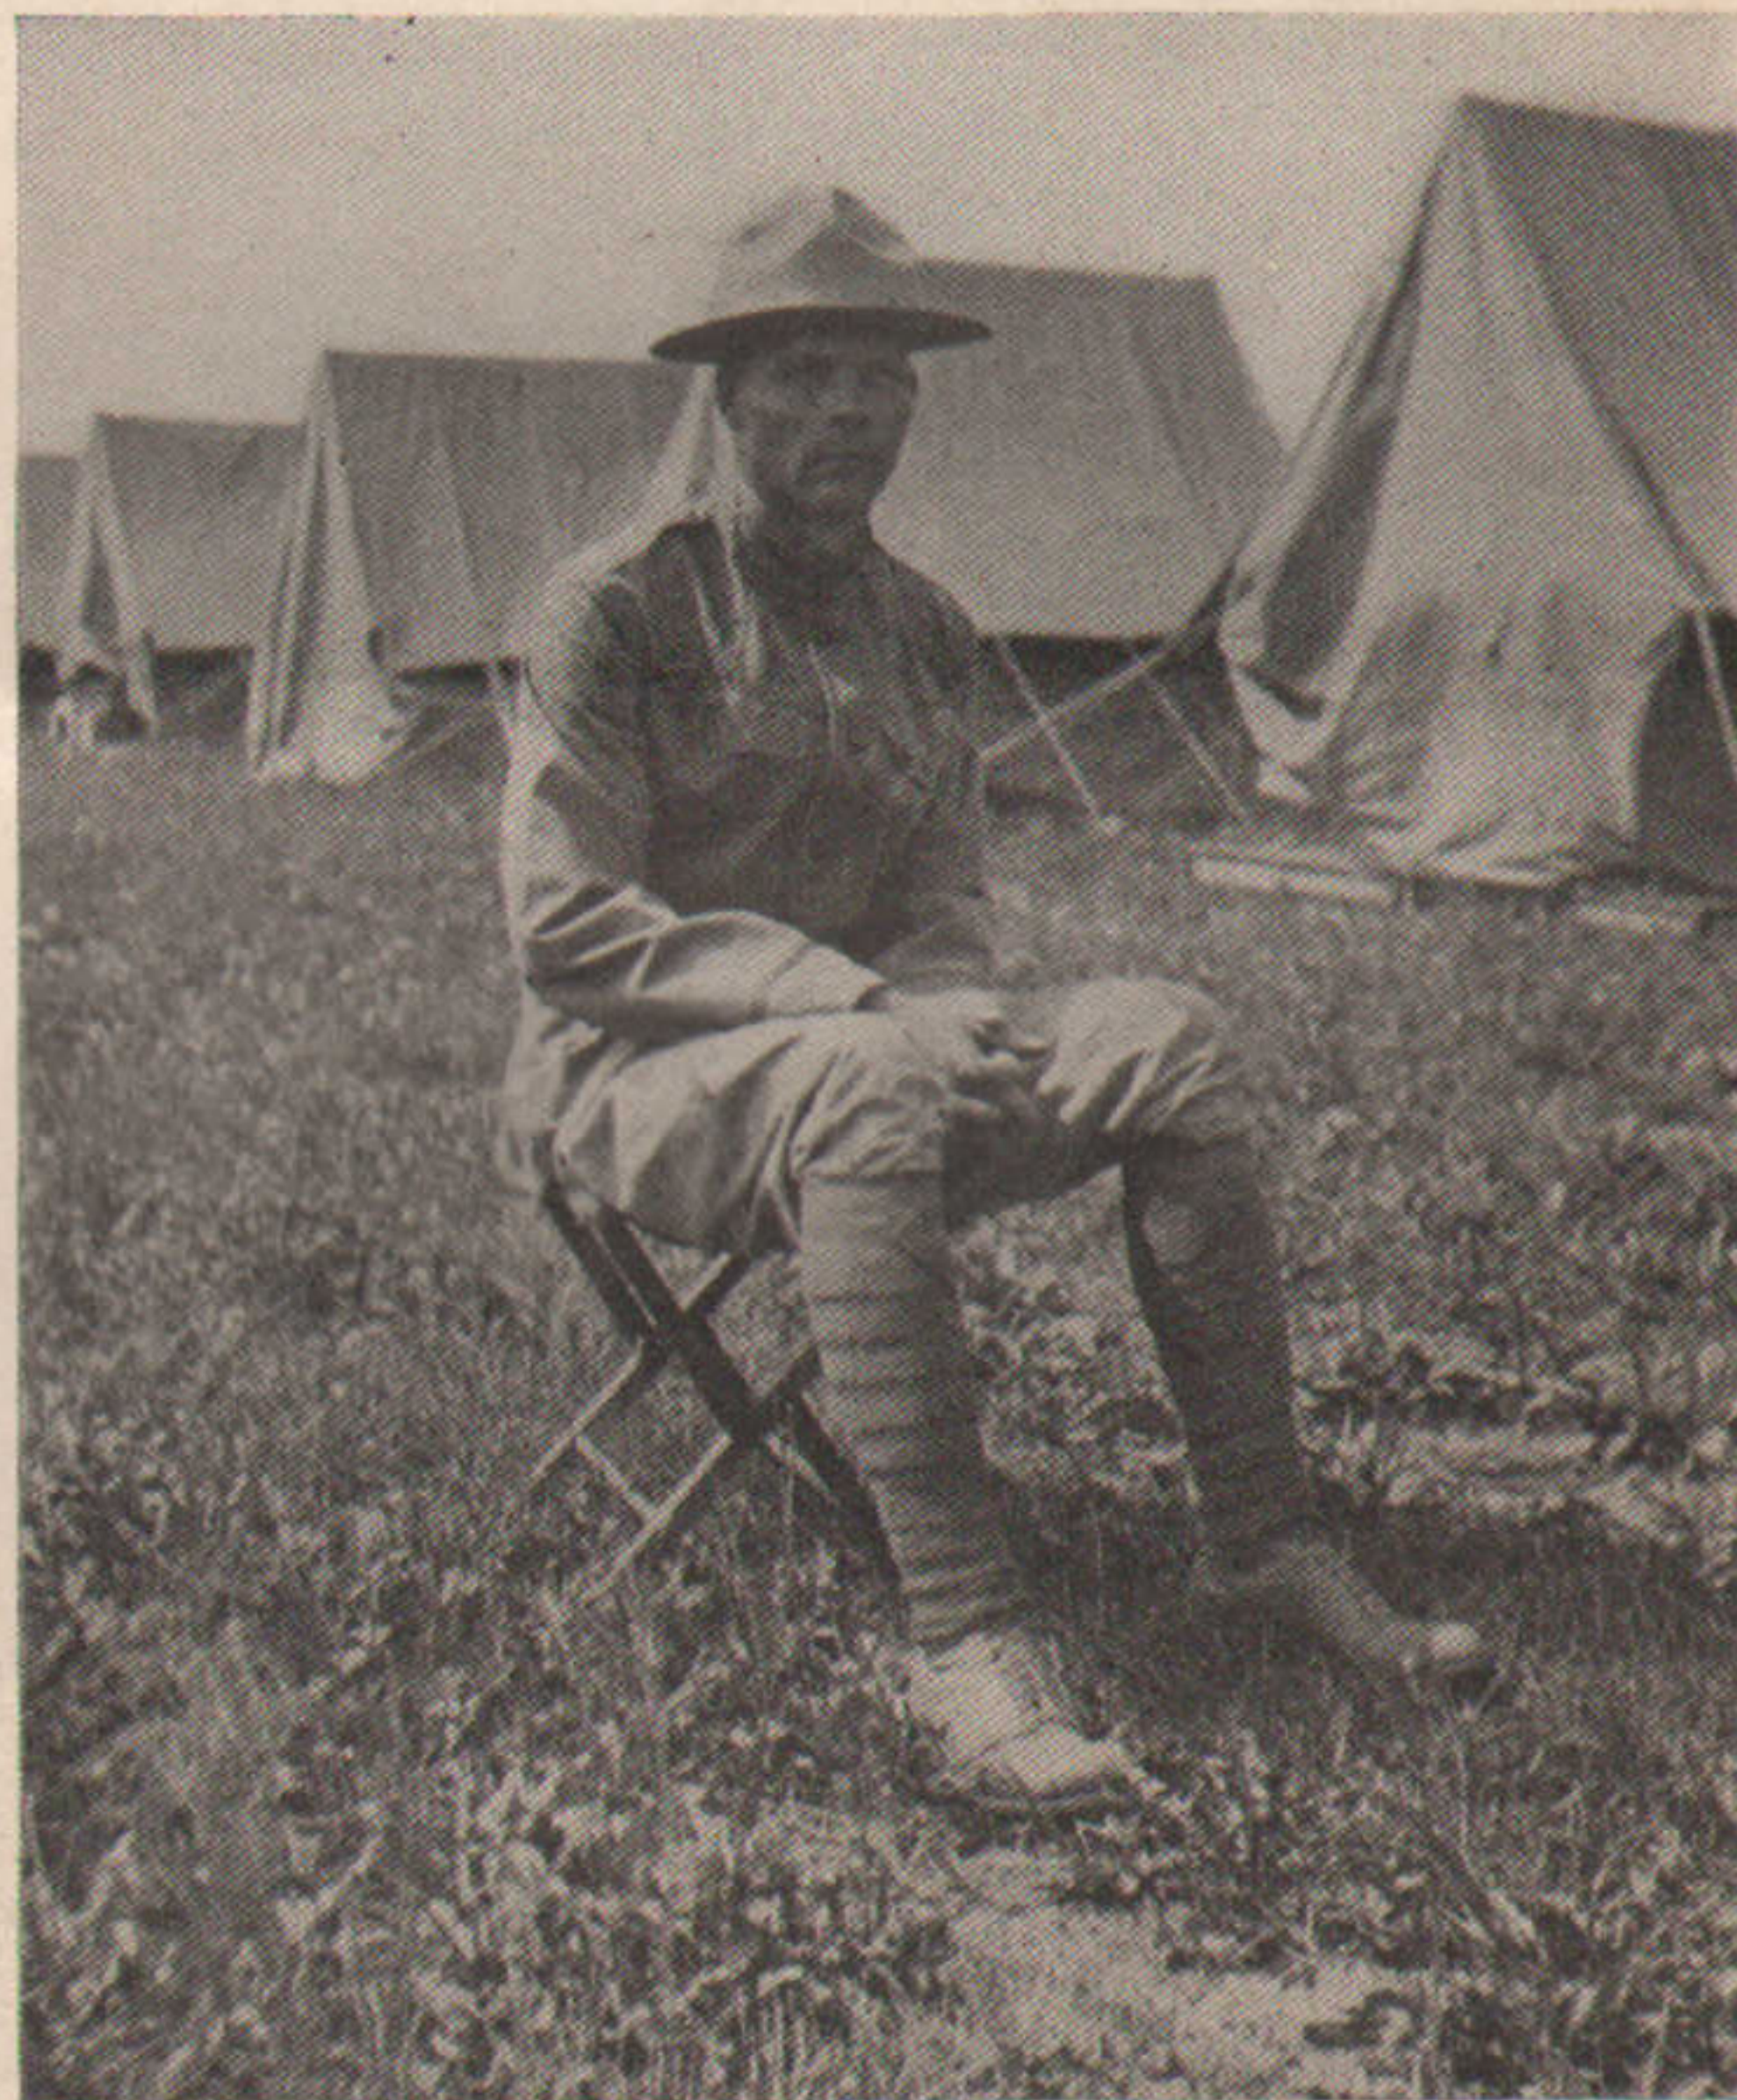

Of the forty-seven prize-winners outside of the tyro class, six were from the Indiana National Guard. Five of them from the 2nd Ind. Infantry. Ohio had seven men in the first division and the wise ones who were watching the scores in the Wimbledon to get a line on the long distance quality of the men to shoot later in the National Team Match found in this fact reason to focus their attention upon the men from these two big interior States.

There was a mixup at the firing point on the score of Lieutenant Van Auken which was only adjusted after a protest had been made by that officer and carried on appeal from the decision of the range officer to the Executive Committee of the N. R. A.

Van Auken had been marked a 5 on his fifteenth shot while the evidence of spectators in the rear of the firing point was to the effect that the disk was red and the spotter indicated a 4 in the 12 o'clock direction, fairly wide. The committee heard numerous witnesses and disallowed the protest, sustaining the decision of the Executive Officer, by which Van Auken received 98 instead of 99.

INDIVIDUAL RAPID FIRE MATCH.

Talking about rapid fire inevitably brings to mind the story General Critchfield told at the clubhouse with some effect. He said two southern gentlemen domiciled in the same hotel in the country below the Mason and Dixon's line undertook with characteristic impetuosity to adjust some small matters of personal difficulty by shooting at each other with deadly weapons. The result of the battle was the death of one or both of them—but that is of no consequence. The point of the story came in the testimony of the negro bootblack who had a stand in the hotel near where the fusillade took place.

At the Coroner's inquest following the mixup this colored gentleman under examination was asked:

"Were you present when the firing between Colonel Blank and Major Bunco took place?"

"Yassuh, yassuh; I was, suh; I was right dar—fo' a po'tion ob de time."

"Where were you when the first shot was fired?"

"Well, suh, w-w-w-w-w-hen de fust shot was fiahed, suh, I was right dar, shinin' a gemmen's shoe, suh."

"Well, where were you when the second shot was fired?"

"Well, suh, I was down at the L. & N. deepo 'bout a mile an' a half away, suh!"

General Critchfield's story made Colonel Dooley think of one about

SERGT. W. S. HALE, OF GEORGIA.
Winner of the Individual Rapid-Fire Match; Score, 50.

another colored man who was mixed up in a shooting scrape.

It seems this fellow in giving an account of what occurred asserted that he saw the bullets and knew they were coming mighty close to him. When asked how and under what circumstances he accomplished this remarkable seeing, he said: "I not only seen dem bullets but I done seen each bullet twicet. I done see it when it passed me and den I seen it again when I passed it." Which anybody will acknowledge indicates that that colored man must have been "going some."

But individual rapid fire is what ought to be told about. There were 249 men willing to test their skill in this trying game. Conditions were good. Seven put on possible scores of 50. To decide the tie these seven each fired one string of five shots; three again made possibles. In the shootoff of the three, Sergt. W. S. Hale, of Georgia, was the only one who survived the strain and put on a full score. This gave him twenty straight 5's, broken up by the necessity for shooting against possibles made by the other men, a highly creditable performance. Twenty consecutive fives at rapid fire under the stress and strain of an important match with two ties to shoot off is good work. Lieutenant Westover of the Infantry Team shot himself into second place.

Hale is a sergeant of Company H, 2nd Georgia Infantry, and lives at Monroe in that State. He was a member of the 1910 Georgia State Team and shot well then, but he had not previously been a member.

Among the tyros 47 was high; Lieut. Harry A. Webb of the 6th Ohio, being the man who had the ranking score.

ENLISTED MEN'S TEAM MATCH.

The program of this first day included the Enlisted Men's Team Match, that new contest made possible by the generous interest of the enlisted men of the Marine Corps, who of their own volition accumulated a fund by subscriptions among themselves and purchased a trophy for the purpose. Teams of six men made the representation from each eligible organization, and eligibility was wide enough to include a team from any State or Territory and from each of the services; to be made up as the name of the match indicates exclusively of enlisted men. The ranges were 600 and 1000 yards, two and ten at each.

In the first pairs up at 600 yards there was much promise of high scoring to come. Two Oregon men, Sergeants Guerrin and Stevens gladdened their team mates by a 49 and a 50. One point down on 20 shots for two men at 600 yards is good going.

The high score at the end of the 600 yard stage was made by the Indiana Team, 285. The Navy and the Infantry Teams each had 280. The 1000 yard firing witnessed some brilliant scoring by the Colorado Team which delivered a total of 275, a high figure there, but the 274 which the men from the Mountain State had carried forward from the 600 was not enough. The Blue Water men with their 280 at 600 plus a 272 at the greater distance finished first with 552. Colorado second 550. The Indiana Team, which had done so well at 600 found bad going at the 1000 and could only produce a total of 545.

Among the members of the Navy Team a good shot and one long in evidence among the good shots produced by the Navy, was Hospital Steward Sprout. His young son, about three years old is at Perry with him and on the afternoon of Tuesday the boy and his daddy were seen together at the 1000 yard range where the elder holding the rifle carefully was giving the little fellow his first lesson in finding the bull at the 1000. The youngster has a good eye, because directing the piece himself and pulling the trigger when he chose he got more than one shot on the target.

Detailed scores of the winning aggregation and other team totals will be found in the score columns.

BEGINNING OF THE GOVERNOR'S MATCH.

The first range of the Governor's Match, the skirmish, was shot Monday afternoon. There were some high scores: Lieut. C. C. Clark, 1st Kansas Infantry, made a possible of 100. Corp. C. B. Long, 5th Massachusetts, 99. There were three 93's. The program called for a continuation of the Governor's Match on Tuesday and Wednesday. Tuesday 200 and 600 yards were called for, these constituting, with the skirmish, the first stage. Of the 272 competitors in this event Capt. F. H. Heidenreich, District of Columbia, stood at the top at the end of the first stage. His skirmish of 98; 200 yard slow, 43; 600 yard, 48; gave him a total of 189. Clark and Long previously mentioned, the first with a shorter distance total of 42 and the longer one of 46, the second with a 42 and 47, were tied on total at 188. Lieut. J. O. Stemple, 2nd Infantry was fourth in standing at the end of the first stage on 186.

With the 200 yard rapid and the 1000 yard slow yet to come, the race looked like a good one, for there were a number of men pretty close to the leaders.

FIRST LEG OF THE LEECH.

The Leech Cup Match, that fine old contest of two and seven at 800, 900 and 1000, was set down for two different days. The 800 yard stage for Tuesday, the 900 and the 1000 stages for Thursday.

When the firing began in the 800 yard stage of this contest Tuesday afternoon, the wind which in the morning had been coming from approximately nine o'clock had milled its way around to the twelve o'clock section, vacillating somewhat toward eleven. The result was a little trouble with elevations such as a fish-tail is sure to bring. The light was fine; all the early threats of rain having disappeared. It was sure that many possibles would be in evidence here, but not so many were actually scored as last year.

This year there were in fact thirty-one men who made a full 35 at the 800 yards. There were also a large number of 34's.

With such a field all that could be said at this period of the match was that it had begun. No one dared take the chance of picking a probable winner.

WONDER WHY.

In the Wimbledon, Colonel Winder, who was among the leaders with 98, scored a lovely string of fives, except on his third or fourth shot when he went out for a twelve-o'clock 3. He was asked by many different ones how he had managed to get that 3-spot out of the bull. The writer asked him the same question, and the lengthy Ohioan said there were several very good reasons which might be given. Up to date, however, there is no record of anyone inquiring how he came to get 19 of the record shots well in toward the center of the bull, which after all seems, upon consideration, to be the most important thing.

COMPETENT ASSISTANT EXECUTIVE OFFICERS.

ment, exercising the authority given him by the rules, designated Col. H. G. Catrow, of Ohio, and Col. John J. Dooley of Maine, as Assistant Executive Officers. Up to the moment neither of these gentlemen has made a mistake, and yet it is said in camp that something has been left undone. The matter being one for police protection rather than strictly within the duties of managing the matches, has perhaps escaped the attention of these alert and vigilant officials.

Yet it is of great importance and someone ought to attend to it. It is stated upon the best of authority that Captain Holt of the District of Columbia team, exercising great care and discretion, purchased a most useful, as well as beautiful, shirt, paying therefor a considerable sum, some say not less than $3.50, others $3.75. At any rate, it was a bully good shirt, one of the choicest possessions of the gallant captain and the very apple of his eye.

There are crickets in Camp Perry, curse them, and these wiry-legged insects are viciously bent on all sorts of mysterious mischief. They chew one's clothes, no matter how much one chooses to have them not do so; they walk around on tent roofs and make noises like the second violin tuning up before the orchestra begins to play. They drop into water pails with a careless unconcern which is not shared by the man who tries to drink one in the dark and finds it impossible. They alight upon the nose of a hurried competitor who is trying to get an early morning shave, and fighting against the inexorable passage of time which bids fair to make him late for chow, causing thereby much mental anguish, some cuts and cusses. The crowning act of vandalism by these terrors of the tented field was that perpetrated upon the innocent Captain Holt whereof he finds himself not shirtless but a shirt less.

Doubtless the crickets being discerning creatures, perceived the merits of this excellent garment for interior or exterior use and decided to acquire it. Be that as it may, to cut the tale of the shirt to reasonable shortness, upon a night not specified within the solemn precincts of the spotless camp dedicated to the use of the expert shots from the Capital City of our Nation, there arose clamor, much wailing, sounds of distress, and accents of anguish. Two distressing incidents were disclosed at the same time. Captain Holt had lost his shirt and Colonel Henderson, the genial and skillful surgeon of the District Team, was short one capable pair of shears.

Searchings and questionings, charges and counter charges, accusations, denials, recriminations, followed fast. The latest advices indicate it to be extremely possible that the crickets stole the scissors or shears as the case may be (the character of the implement is the only questionable point in this whole story), to cut the buttons off of Holt's shirt that they might masticate it all, leaving not a shred behind.

The attention of responsible officials has been called to this awful calamity and redress is earnestly hoped for, although in truth expectations are not high. Later—The crickets have brought back the scissors, but the shirt is still short. That's what shirts.

THE EVANS SKIRMISH MATCH.

Not first on the program Wednesday, but actually first in point of interest which it elicited, was the Service Skirmish Match, which bears the name of the Executive Officer. General Evans donated the cup which goes as a visible evidence to the winning team of its prowess in this peculiar competition.

Naturally the General took more than passing notice of this event. Not alone because of it being an original conception of his own, but also because the firing is carried on in a way intended to simulate service firing, as far as that can be done under target shooting conditions.

There were seven teams entered: Alabama, Infantry No. 1, Infantry No. 2; Arizona, Cavalry; Tennessee and the District of Columbia. Eight men formed each team. The method employed was to form two of the teams in line in extended order at 1200 yards from the targets. There are sixteen targets of the silhouette variety. The teams are started down the range toward the targets and without notice the figures appear from the pits to remain an unknown length of time. The intervals between their appearances are also uncertain.

The team captains controlling their respective organizations give the range and firing directions and control the expenditure of ammunition. Each firer is numbered and the targets belonging to the opposition bear the same numbers. When a target identified with a particular shooter is hit it is lowered into the pit and the man with that number is considered dead. He drops out and is not allowed to fire longer.

Team captains drew for firing assignments. In the original drawing which was made on Tuesday, District of Columbia drew Tennessee; Cavalry, Infantry No. 1; Alabama, Arizona; Infantry No. 2 drew the by and was therefore placed in the semi-finals without competition.

BEFORE THE BATTLE.

On Tuesday afternoon in the first combat between the District of Columbia and Tennessee, the District Team put their opponents out of action. The Cavalry cleaned up Infantry No. 1 and Alabama gave the quietus to the straight-shooting men from the southwest. This left in the running for Wednesday's battle, teams arrayed against each other in this wise: District of Columbia against Infantry No. 2; Cavalry opposed to Alabama.

By ones and twos the gallant men from the side of the Potomac yielded up their target ghosts to the representatives of the foot soldiery of the Army, until all were spent.

The Alabamians surprised the field and discomfited the Cavalry supporters by disposing of the men who fight on horseback or on foot as circumstances may dictate, in rather handsome style. Considerable enthusiasm followed the victory of the Southerners. Cheering, which is not often heard upon the firing line, was an audible evidence of the intense interest and enthusiasm.

A line of spectators composed of contestants and bystanders followed the firers down the field in each run. There was even a carriage or two and an automobile. Mrs. Evans wife of the Executive Officer, Mrs. Griffith, wife of Colonel Griffith, Chief Range Officer, and Mrs. Butt, wife of Major Butt of the Executive Staff, were observed in a carriage which was never far from the line of cracking rifles from the first engagement to the last.

Infantry No. 2, having disposed of the District, and Alabama being the victor over the Cavalry, left these two champions to fight it out to a finish. When the sound of firing had ceased and the faint, but acrid smoke of the last battle had cleared away, Infantry No. 2 had triumphed. The men from down Mobile way in an imitation battle had bit imaginary dust and were out of business, so far as the Evans Service Skirmish Match was concerned, until next year.

The direction of the match on the second day when things ran much more smoothly than they did on the first, was turned over to Col. John J. Dooley, Assistant Executive Officer. The system which he worked out for handling the scorers and expeditiously disposing of the dead men as they received their quietus, moved with admirable precision.

The match is a good one, both from the standpoint of competitive interest and of practical instruction. The number of shots which were ineffectively fired at the longer range was an object lesson of striking character. The modern military rifle with its great carrying power is practically useless when fired more than 800 yards from an objective unless the range is accurately known.

Estimating distance may be a gift; if so, it is one bestowed upon a mighty small number of men. Careful training, skilful instruction and systematic methods, to say nothing of range finding instruments, are all required before a line of rifles can deliver their hissing missiles at the point where the fire director wishes them to strike. Estimating distance is an accomplishment of the greatest importance. Too little attention has been paid to this vital point by all of our shooting people.

A constant struggle must be made to avoid artificiality in rifle practice. If the National Matches and the annual events of the National Rifle Association are to be of continuing and increasing benefit as a means of increasing the effectiveness of small arms fire, more practical features similar to the Evans Service Skirmish Match, involving quick estimates of distance must be included.

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S CUP MATCH.

A duplicate of the Wimbledon, the Adjutant General's Cup contest, with its two and twenty at 1000 yards, affords an opportunity for skilful and sturdy long range shots to show what they are made of. Many a man who can run through ten shots at the 1000 dropping only a point or two, finds the strain of double that number more than he can endure.

Capt. G. H. Emerson, of the 6th Ohio, who won the Wimbledon with a 98, which outranked that of the three other competitors tying him in total score, stood alone with another 98 at the end of the Adjutant General's. Maj. Charles F. Benedict, Ohio, a trusty and sure shot, a member of the Palma, 1907, and the Olympic, 1908, International teams, was the only man to score 97. This gave him second place. Lieut. Col. Rowland, New Jersey, and Sergt. Ernest McEachin, Infantry, were entitled to third and fourth on their scores of 96, while Capt. D. C. McDougal, Marine Corps, made fifth place by standing at the head of the seven men who rolled up 95 each.

Captain Emerson again used the telescopic sight and special 180 grain ammunition. Not many men go as high as 98, in such a match as this without the aid of the telescope, and yet under some conditions expert opinion inclines toward a belief that the telescope is a handicap instead of a help. It is sure that with all existing forms of 'scope users of it must exercise extreme care.

Of the tyros, Lieut. Chris. Sigala, topped the list of fourteen 91's.

THE LAST STAGE OF THE GOVERNOR'S MATCH.

Lieut. C. C. Clark, 1st Kansas Infantry, was second at the close of the first stage of the Governor's Match, one point behind Captain

2D LIEUT. C. C. CLARK, OF KANSAS.

Heidenreich, District of Columbia. Clark made a skirmish of 100 in the first stage (which included skirmish, 200 and 600 slow). In the final stage the man from Kansas made good promise of his earlier shooting by delivering a 46 at 200 rapid and a 46 at 1000. His full total for the whole match of 280 thus became two points larger than the total figure credited to Myrick, Chief Turret Captain of the Navy.

Myrick swung into second place by a garrison finish. He was eighth at the close of the first stage but his 50 at rapid fire and 46 at 1000 lifted him over the other contenders and landed him second, with the total of 278. Captain Heidenreich found the going bad in rapid fire and secured only 42. His good 46 at the 1000 was not good enough and he had to be satisfied with 277 and third place. Lieutenant Stemple of Ohio, also had bad luck during his rapid fire string where a 40 which he scored was only partially compensated for by his brilliant 49 at the 1000.

Of the tyros, Lieut. A. Rutherford, Infantry, was first, while after him in the order in which their names are mentioned came Lieut. F. T. Burt, Infantry; Sergt. C. A. Stewart, West Virginia, and Maj. C. C. Smith, of Georgia.

THE HALE MATCH.

You know about the Hale. It is two and ten at 600 yards, and of late years it has come to be an unwritten law that a man shall shoot a basketful of bullseyes over the possible to be sure of winning. This year was no exception to the rule. Three competitors put on possibles and over while two more had possibles and no other bulls for good measure. Capt. R. H. Allen of the Infantry Team, a shooting member of that team in previous years and coach of the doughboys for 1911, only got out of the black on his twenty-first shot for record. His twenty-one bullseyes gave him first place by a safe margin. After him came Sergt. J. E. Jackson, 54th Iowa Infantry, his fifteen bullseyes were worth second place. Lieut. W. H. Ilinger, Colorado, landed thirteen and thus secured third. The others who made possibles were Lieutenant Overholser of the Infantry and Lieutenant Seeley of Arizona. There were thirteen 49's.

Of the tyros, F. P. Coffin of Colorado, had the ranking 48 and thus led the list of the newly successful shots. Out of the 274 entries in this match, so many shot 48 or better that the bullseyes on the targets which were used must have looked like a standard brand of Swiss cheese.

ATWOOD AND OTHER INCIDENTS.

The aviator Atwood, who is making a cross-country flight, with the assistance of an airp and a good manager, was given a polite invitation to alight for awhile at Perry and rest his motor, but the best information obtainable indicates that this fier is not doing any thank-you stunts while he can get good money for landing in specified and extra interested places.

He gave the big rifle camp the go-by, passing a mile or so to the south, but in plain view of all those who were not too busily engaged to glance in his direction.

General Elliott, the Adjutant General of West Virginia, appears to be about the best-shooting Adjutant General on the grounds. In various practice and other matches, he seemed to be able to make 90 per cent or better when he choose, at any range back to and including the longest, and his rapid fire scores were equally good. While a new man among the chief military officers of States, General Elliott seems to show a genuine interest in all other branches of military activity equal to that which he exhibits in rifle practice.

The Warner and Swasey Optical Company, makers of the telescopic sight adopted for the use of the Army and large manufacturers of optical and other fine instruments, had a representative on the ground in the person of Mr. G. Fecker, whose position with the Warner & Swasey Company is that of superintendent of the Astronomical Instrument Department.

The teams came in by ones and twos on Wednesday and Thursday; among the individual arrivals, were Gen. Charles I. Martin, Adjutant General of Kansas, Secretary of the National Guard Association of the United States; Gen. Wilder S. Metcalf of Kansas, member of the National Militia Board, and Col. J. G. Ewing of the du Pont Company.

Colonel Ewing brought to the camp the impressive and handsome trophy, or specimen of the trophy, which the du Pont Company proposes to offer through the Militia Division of the War Department and the State authorities as a distinguishing token for company excellence in rifle fire. On this subject more details will be forthcoming later on.

Lieut. Gen. John C. Bates, retired, President of the National Rifle Association, has been in camp since Saturday, the 12th and will probably remain until the end.

General Bates takes the keenest interest in every match that is shot. Nothing escapes his vigilant eyes and his pleasure in good scores is almost as great as that of the men who make them. Of all Americans alive today, there is not one who is more admired and respected by those who have associated with him in peace and war, than is this quiet, unassuming, gray-bearded veteran of many wars.

General Bates was a captain on the staff of General Meade at Gettysburg, and through his career in the Army, which ended only after he had become Lieutenant General of the Army and Chief of Staff, he always proved himself fit for every emergency. He is fond of shotgun as well as rifle shooting and takes especial delight—when one is fortunate enough to be able to draw him out, in telling with loving remembrance of the glorious days he has spent over a pair of good setters in the field for bobwhite or of other good hours when in a pass between two lakes he reached with a trusty gun into the high air for fast hard-flying ducks.

Mr. A. F. Hebbard, of the Remington Arms U. M. C. Company, was in camp Wednesday, renewing old acquaintances, and getting points on the shooting situation. Some wag asked Mr. Hebbard if he wanted to go to Toledo. The U. M. C. man said, "No; I wish to visit the 1000 yard firing line." "Well," said the would-be funny person, "come on: That's what I mean. They call the 1000 yard firing line Toledo here, because the left flank of it is just about as far away as to Toledo."

The soldierly figure of Col. Joseph Garrard, 15th Cavalry, member of the Executive Committee of the National Rifle Association has grown familiar to those who frequent the firing line. Colonel Garrard was a rifleman or consequence in the Army a considerable number of years ago. He was seen shaking hands with Sergeant-Major Huddleson, of Massachusetts, while the two recalled with mutual pleasure matches in which they engaged as competitors in 1886.

THE WIND-UP OF THE LEECH.

The Leech Cup Match, which had its beginning on Tuesday, was finished Thursday afternoon according to schedule. The 900 yards stage having been shot Thursday forenoon. There were not many possibles made at 900 yards. The conditions were not perfect but they were good enough until more full scores might have been expected. Ensign Knerr, Navy and Sergeant Kean of Massachusetts, were the only men among the winners who got a full 35 at 900. The winner, Lieut. S. W. Anding, Infantry, scored 33, at the middle range which placed between two possibles gave him a total of 103 and the Match. Ordnance Sergeant Leushner, 74th New York, International team man and always consistent shot, drew second with a ranking 102. Leushner's scores were 33, 34, 35. Sergeant Czegka, Marines, Private Andrews, 5th Ohio, and Lieutenant Simon, Ohio, were the other 102 men. There were several possibles at 1000 yards as the detailed scores will show.

The record made by Lieutenant Sturdevant of the Engineers last year, a full score of 105, is not liable to be tied for some time to come.

Of the tyros, Lieut. A. J. Mullen, 1st Arizona, led, and Lieutenant Roberts, of Texas, was second.

Thursday morning showed a gray and threatening sky, but we are commencing to get used to that. Threats do not frighten us very much at Perry, because so far they have not been made good. It was warm and close; there was little or no wind and what there was came from nowhere in particular.

Chaplain Dickson, of the 26th Infantry, who with his recreation tent attracted so much favorable comment last year was again on the ground. He has added a moving picture plant and his own electric lighting apparatus to the equipment of the recreation division. There is also a trim, trig, olive-drab automobile, which allows the energetic chaplain to get about from place to place almost as speedily as an aviator. The little car bears the legend "26th U. S. Infantry" on its hood. The efforts of the chaplain to entertain the men and keep them in camp at night are appreciated. His entertainments have large audiences.

IT MIGHT BE TRUE.

A firer on the range whose score board showed a miss in the middle of a string at the thousand solemnly explained the presence of the goose-egg by saying he felt sure his bullet had struck a "hole in the air." It is thus seen we have something more for which to thank the aviators.

Someone once wrote a book, and a large book at that, containing a list of the reasons why every shot was not a bullseye. Now a revised edition can be published. Truth is mighty and must prevail; an axiomatic statement which applies to some other circumstances in life besides rifle shooting. A case in point is furnished by Colonel Ewing: The Bohemian Club in San Francisco is one of the most noted organizations in the world; made up of clever men, writers, artists, and similar folk; it lives up to the individual reputation of its members. Its high jinks in the Redwood Forest owned by the club are marvelous examples of how many friendly jokes can be played in a limited length of time. The high jinks are the annual outing of the organization. Living in tents, a strictly stag camp affords a freedom of raiment and conduct exceedingly primitive. Pajamas are full dress, and nature's garb is not uncommon.

There is a bathing house near the little lake open to any curious eyes the camp might hold. But a screen always elevated hangs invitingly ready to be pulled down. The novice bather entering this haven and securing himself from observation by lowering the screen, thereby rings a bell in the bar and has to buy for everybody.

One of the best of many amusing incidents which the irrepressible spirit of the Bohemians has brought into being, was that of the Admiral of Bolivia. The Union Iron Works of San Francisco, built the battleship Oregon. She is a good ship as all men know; her makers are proud of her and they hope to do other work of a similar kind for our own and outside governments. And they did build and are building many good ships.

An important officer of the shipbuilding concern, strolled in to the bar of the Bohemian Club one night with a friend for a purpose which need not be stated, and while chatting there observed a stranger of distinguished appearance engaged in pouring out a libation to the Gods, or if not that, at any rate pouring. The unknown was of a swarthy cast of countenance.

The boatbuilder feeling curious asked his friend, "Who is that dark man over there?" The friend was fertile of expedient, so he replied: "What! Don't you know him? Huh, that's the Admiral of the Bolivian Navy. Why, you ought to get acquainted with him; he's up here to buy ships, heaps of ships."

Of course the iron-works man wanted to meet him and the friend thought he could arrange it. He did, and a pleasant evening resulted. The next day the shipbuilder called up his friend on the telephone and said: "Old man, I would like to get close to that Bolivian Admiral, he is a fine fellow, a pleasant companion, and besides I understand from what you told me last night that he wants to buy ships. He said nothing to me about it, though."

"Oh, yes," said the good Samaritan; "That Admiral is certainly a good sport, and he certainly does want ships, as a cat desires a mouse." "How can I get a little closer to him?" was the query of the one who had ships to sell. "Oh, well," offered the kind adviser. "the best thing to do is to give him a dinner; a swell, bang-up formal dinner. These South Americans are great on formal dinners. You invite him and his staff to dinner tonight. I don't know what his engagements are, but I expect he'll come if he has no other date."

"About how many members of the staff are there?"

"About forty. They are great on staffs, these South American Admirals, you know. You arrange for a dinner for the Admiral and a staff of forty and you'll have it about right."

The one who wanted to sell ships bestirred himself, gave the invitation which was graciously accepted and went to all manner of expense to prepare a dinner which should be perfect in every detail. The hour for the function came, and with it to the Bohemian Club where it was to be held, came also the Admiral. He was a thing of beauty and a joy forever; indeed and indeed Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like this Bolivian Admiral. He simply scintillated with jeweled orders; stars and medals and decorations vied with the brilliance of his ornate uniform to attract and command attention.

His host met him at the door, and greeted him with the words: "Delighted to see you Admiral, but where is your staff?"

"Oh," responded the other, "it is not etiquette in the Bolivian Navy for the staff of an admiral to accompany its chief upon such an occasion. The staff is sent on separately and taken directly to the dining room. The members of my staff are here in your dining room now."

"Oh, very well," said the Californian, "that's fine. Glad they're here. Let's you and I have a cocktail and then we'll go in to dinner, and Admiral, it is certainly a bang-up dinner."

They had the appetizer, and then turned toward the diningroom. The host beamed as his friend the Bolivian Admiral majestically accompanied him toward the closed door. As they neared the scene of the coming feast the portals were thrown wide and there seated at the magnificently decorated tables were forty members of the Bohemian Club, specially selected and let into the secret for the occasion.

It cost the man who was looking for business over $700 for that dinner, but it should have been worth at least that to find out that Bolivia has no navy, and being a mountainous inland country lacking an outlet to the sea, it will in all probability never have one.

ALL-COMERS OFFHAND MATCH.

Two and twenty at 200 yards: 600 feet is not very far and the gentle winds of Thursday morning dealt leniently with the offhand experts who tried to nail that elusive 8-inch black spot for twenty straight times. No one succeeded. No one ever has done so, so far as is known, but Lieut. A. D. Rothrock, of Ohio, and Col. W. A. Tewes of New Jersey, each got fourteen of them in. Rothrock's 94 ranked that of Tewes, while Captain McDougal, of the Marines, was equally fortunate in his 93, when it was compared with the 93 of Capt. S. W. Wise, of Massachusetts.

The tyros began their scoring at 89; Sergt. F. R. Daniels, of Massachusetts, led this division.

Friday gave us another one of those partial heart failures by hinting rain and storm; a few scattering drops fell between seven and eight o'clock, but not enough to be dignified by the name of rain or even a shower. The wind was doing some things though, coming from eleven to twelve o'clock at fifteen to twenty miles an hour. During the forenoon the clouds remained banked up in the northwest except such large detachments of them as broke away and moved over the face of the sun to make holding a little harder for the men who were doing their best to put every bullet in the same puncture through the target, and that puncture in the dead middle of the bull.

INDIVIDUAL LONG RANGE TYRO MATCH.

That frisky wind fishtailing to and fro on the twelve o'clock side, made high scoring difficult in the Individual Long Range Tyro, a match open to those who have never previously finished at the top of a N. R. A. contest. Its conditions call for two and twenty at 1000 yards.

Of the 255 men who shot, six made 48. Of these Lieut. A. J. Mullen, of Arizona, was first on account of the rank of his score. The others with equal totals were Lieutenant Rutherford, Infantry; Lieut. D. L. Smith, Marines; Lieut. T. J. West, West Virginia; Sergt. C. O. Briggs, Iowa; Priv. B. Fickey, West Virginia. These finished in the order named.

There were nine 47's and sixty-third man or the last prize winner had a score of 43. Sergeant Clark, of Indiana, was the winner of this match last year by a beautiful score of 19 bulls.

The most consistent shooting during the Tyro was done by a contestant whose name shall remain unknown, for reasons subsequently apparent. Consistency is a jewel, which has its value everywhere and in all places, not excepting rifle matches. The most consistent score, considering that nobody made fifty, was that of a man who approaching the firing point elaborate dope bag in hand, his face set in grim de-

That a man shall serve his country in time of war is noble, brave, and patriotic; but that a man shall properly prepare himself in time of peace to serve in war is all of these things and more. It is noble with a nobility which is real, not ideal. It is brave with a bravery which assumes in time of unemotional peace many burdens, among them that of bearing the lack of appreciation of those who do not consider military preparation or training necessary.

LET US MAKE IT A GREAT GATHERING.

Year after next, 1913, there will be a more than ordinary effort to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the battle of Lake Erie.

A national committee, composed of distinguished men, has the affair in charge, and among the suggestions for a fitting celebration is one that a shooting tournament of extra interest and importance take place at Camp Perry. The colossal Ohio range, which owes its name to the naval battle seems an essentially fitting place for commemorative activity in connection with the celebration.

No locality could be more suitable. Only twelve miles north of where the bullets from the rifles of competitors in the National Matches enter the water with a savage chug after their passage through the well-pierced targets, lies the actual scene of Perry's victory over the British.

The committee on the celebration has proposed that international rifle, revolver and pistol matches be added to a national program at Camp Perry for 1913. Discussion of this matter at Camp Perry this year has brought out other useful suggestions.

It seems to us to be only reasonable and quite within the category of things possible to be accomplished, that at Camp Perry in 1913 there should be the largest shooting tournament which this country has ever witnessed.

Not only the rifle, the revolver and pistol should be represented by international matches of all kinds, characters and descriptions, but there should also be added a national shotgun tournament.

A month of shooting events could be made up, if a devotion of so long a time to the purpose seemed desirable, and every day of that month could be given over to events of the greatest moment and interest. Bringing the riflemen and the shotgun shooters together would redound to the benefit of both sports.

Riflemen would learn and be quick to appreciate the pleasure to be derived from the use of the scatter gun at the clay birds. The shotgun men for their part would soon perceive the fine element of sport in rifle shooting, and they would early sense the value of skill with the rifled tube as a means of national defence.

Camp Perry is an ideal location for a general gathering of any kind, it is situated very close to the population center of the country and not too far from the exact geographical center. The facilities for taking care of contestants, the large mess-hall, the sewage disposal plant, the water and electric light systems, require but the addition of comfortable tents with furnishings, to provide a home for an indefinite period to the full satisfaction of 5,000 men. More individuals can be made comfortable in the immediate vicinity of the points where they are to enter actual shooting events than would be possible if either rifle range or shotgun grounds was located near a large city.

In short, there is nowhere in America, a better place for such an event, a great, extensive, and comprehensive international and national shoot with a program to suit the users of all weapons. The peculiar availability of Camp Perry in connection with the Centennial celebration of Perry's victory must be immediately apparent to everyone.

As a preliminary step to securing national matches in this country for 1913, a team of rifle and pistol shots should be sent abroad next year, 1912, to take part in such international shooting tournaments as may be open to our marksmen. These parties of contestants can be made missionaries to arrange a return visit of foreign contestants to us in 1913.

A little seasonable attention to the subject will insure the consummation of the plans which we have briefly outlined, with the result, positive and sure, that we can thus establish a high figure of merit for a shooting tournament long to be remembered.

A PALMA MATCH DOUBTFUL.

Although not settled beyond the possibility of a doubt, it now appears improbable that the Palma Match can be shot between Canada and the United States this year. The Canadians were so situated that it was impossible for them to say until last week whether they would be able to challenge for the trophy this year. They finally found it possible to invite America to shoot with them, but most unfortunately, the dates which would suit them were impossible for us.

Canada wanted September 2, and they preferred Sea Girt as the place. The National Rifle Association and national events continue at Camp Perry until August 31. If there be rain they will be going longer than that. The Tournament of the New Jersey State Rifle Association opens at Sea Girt September 1. The shooting there does not conclude until September 9.

It would be beyond reason to expect to shoot at Sea Girt during their regular program, because all the days have been fully accounted for up to Saturday, September 9. But there are other reasons why it is impossible for the American team to meet the Canadians before September 11, the day which was designated to them as the earliest one when the match could be shot.

The leading American riflemen, including practically every man who would try for a place on the team have now before them, and indeed they are now in the midst of, a series of shooting events to last until September 9. It is out of the question to try to select a team by any other means than a special competition. In most of the open matches of the National Rifle Association telescopic sights are allowed and it would therefore be impracticable to use scores made in the matches as a basis for selection of a team. A tryout would take at least two days.

The Canadians are foemen worthy of our steel. We cannot afford to meet them with a team we consider anything less than the best we can turn out. To make a team of even the finest individual shots without team practice is utterly beyond the power of man. Four days at the least should be given up to team training after the selection of a captain, a coach and the members of the team.

There also enters into the question the subject of ammunition. The rules governing the Palma Match allow any ammunition suitable for use in the service rifles which are required as the weapons. Nothing less than the best ammunition would be good enough for use against adversaries as skilful as the Canadians.

That means hand loaded ammunition, carefully weighed powder charges; measured, weighed and spun bullets, and the greatest care in loading. Every maker of .30 caliber ammunition in the United States is justly entitled to the same opportunity as every manufacturer to submit ammunition for trial to determine which might best be used. Such an ammunition trial would take more time.

Advices received from unofficial sources in Canada indicate the improbability of a match on the 11th or later because of the difficulty which the Canadians have to meet, of keeping their team together. Most of the men who would be expected to shoot against America have been at Bisley for about all of July taking part in the British Matches. They have been so long away from their homes and employment that it may be impossible for them to devote longer time to shooting this year.

If, however, a 1911 Palma proves impracticable, the circumstances only emphasize the necessity for arranging now, in the immediate future for a 1912 Palma. The date for the contest should be tentatively decided upon and it should be made a part of the National Rifle Association program for next year. In that way, and in that way only, can we be sure of having it. The Palma we believe should be made an annual institution between Canada and America, to which all other nations should be ever invited. We hope to see an agreement to that effect reached between the interested parties.

termination, made deliberate preparations to do a clean piece of work, and who did it.

He was observed to sight very carefully for some time before he fired his first sighting shot, which when scored gave him a 0. He used still greater care for pulling the second sighting shot looking frequently through the telescope and casting eagle-eyed glances about to detect any change of conditions no matter how slight. His efforts were rewarded; the second sighting shot giving him a 0. Now began his record score. Without abating in any degree the watchful care or scientific appraisal of the value of all of the elements which might militate against him he wriggled himself into a firmer position on the ground, looked long and earnestly through the telescope more than once and finally when all was satisfactory he got off his first record shot. Hurrah for him! He has done it. Another 0. The second shot for record under almost similar circumstances yielded no less and no more than the first. At the end of the string the total of his ten shots for record was 0, and the total of his two sighting shots plus his ten shots for record was also 0.

Now that is what may justly be called consistent shooting. Every shot just like every other. It may have been that this contestant misinterpreted the word "Tyro." To most of us it means one who has not won a high place in a certain type of contest. Possibly this clean-score man had a notion a tyro was one who had never hit a target with a bullet. Or it might have been he was sorry for the poor little target so far away, so lonely and so helpless, and the spark of chivalry within him urged protection for it. He left the range with a smile on his face, so he must have accomplished what he started out to do or else he thought it better to have shot and missed than never to have shot at all. Candor compels the admission of a belief, however, that this was but another case of misplaced bullets.

THE MARINE CORPS MATCH.

The Marine Corps Match, the grand contest of two and twenty at 600 and two and twenty at 1000 for a beautiful and valuable trophy presented in 1909 by officers of the Marine Corps, began on Thursday at the 600 yard stage. The final of it came Friday, the 1000 yard stage going on both in the forenoon and after lunch.

A vicious twelve o'clock fishtail played havoc with high scores, but there were some exceptions.

Lieut. H. E. Simon, 1st Ohio, Olympic 1908 Team, and long a member of the Ohio State Team, came back from 600 with 96. His 99 at 1000 was a brilliant performance, the consequent total of 195 gave him first over 1st Sergeant Czegka, Marine Corps, by two points. Czegka brought 97 from the shorter range and a fine 96 helped him to a total of 193. Sergt. A. D. Bell, 1st West Virginia, with a 96 at each range, secured third on a full total of 192. After him in fourth and fifth places came Sergt. P. Peterson and Sergt. J. J. Andrews, both of the Marines, with 190 each.

Capt. E. A. Cole, 1st Kansas, who finished sixth with the good total of 189, has a very peculiar prone position. He rests the butt of the rifle against his breast instead of on the shoulder. While he seems able to get results, the position is one which few men would be able to assume with comfort or satisfaction.

The 1910 winning score in the Marine Corps Match, 192, was made by Corp. P. A. Schofield, Massachusetts. The match was won in 1909, the first year in which it was shot, by Capt. C. A. McDougal, Marine Corps, with 187, made up of a 96 and a 91. Both Simon and Czegka, therefore, broke the match record. Lieutenant Rutherford, of the Infantry, headed the tyros on a score of 181, while Lieut. L. W. T. Waller of the Marine Corps got second among the newer shots.

THE COMPANY TEAM MATCH.

The race among company teams to decide the championship of the United States has always been a competition full of keen rivalry. The honor of winning this important event is a great one, of which many company commanders have fondly dreamed. Capt. W. E. Parsons, Company L, 1st West Virginia Infantry, may well be satisfied with the victory of his team, of which he was a shooting member, over the choice and skilful field which opposed him.

The West Virginia men scored a total at 200 yards of 169, which was high there, and their 600 yard total of 188, again the high figure, gave them a grand total of 357, a margin of five points over Company L, 1st Colorado Infantry, which in turn led Company G, 1st Montana Infantry, by one point.

The match was won last year by 4th Company Naval Academy and the year before by Company F, 1st Minnesota Infantry. Previous scores cannot be compared with those made this year as the conditions of the match have been changed from a five-man team to a four-man team.

“Plenty of Practice is the Secret of Expert Marksmanship”

BEGIN TRAINING NOW WITH THE Hollifield Indicator

This practical device, adopted in the U. S. ARMY, can be procured on requisition under Sec. 1661, R. S., or direct from us.

The practice is very interesting, and done with ones favorite rifle—every feature of real shooting, except recoil, is simulated. The gun is free in your hands. The training is extremely beneficial. It is, in fact, superior to gallery or miniature rifle practice, with no loss of time and no expense for ammunition, while training.

We also make “MAGAZINE-FIRE ATTACHMENTS” (5 dummy cartridges in clip), used with the rifle indicator; “REVOLVER INDICATORS”; “PIN SPOTTERS”; “SAFTY TARGETS” (bullet catcher), having all the good features of the iron and the paper target, and some of its own.

News from Greenville.

Members of the Manhattan's have been scarce this summer, but when they do come around it seems as if they had been in the tall timber somewhere, growing, perhaps, some good stout branches of Olympic timber. Some of the branches came around at Greenville Saturday.

It seems that Roedder & Dietz have been getting together on the quiet and that Dietz has been allowing Roedder 10 points handicap in 50 shots. Well it began like this. Hans was sick, no doubt about it, he had had an egg for breakfast and a dish of grape nuts for lunch (dope fiends take notice) so it was his private opinion that an early start and plenty of time would not hurt his chances, so he proceeded to get to work, when John appeared he was greeted as follows: “You have got to go today, I have only 471.” John spent a little time thinking over whether he would shoot or look at the rest of the performance, and finally decided to shoot, when he stopped, he had only got 481 and as scratch man wins in a handicap, he won.

While Dietz was working with the pistol, just to show that he was still sick, Hans went to work with the revolver, and could not get more than 470 to save himself, too bad, better luck next time (?)

Lane was tneer too, but kind of shield off, and thought it would be a good place to change off and try some rapid fire, so—just like this—he shot 203 and 202 with a military revolver and full loads, total 50 shots 410.

- Roedder shot a Remington pistol .22 Lr.
- Roedder a S. & W. revolver, Pope barrel.
- Lane a .38 Military, U. M. C. full loads.

We were looking for Dr. Hicks, he did not come, did he have an eye out for weather or was he really busy?

While the above was going on on the pistol range, Pope and Dorrlor were having a real old fashioned scrap on the rifle range; it came about this way: Last week, Pope was tired, just drifted in at the range during the middle of the afternoon when Mike was going good, and was saluted thus, “I can lick the stuffing out of you.” “You can't do it, I can beat you with your own gun.” He tried, two 5 shot scores, Pope had 110 and 112, but Mike shaded him each time and was correspondingly eloquent, so a 50 shot match was agreed on for today. Well it was a scrap, Mike started in the lead, the lead shifted 6 times during the match, they were never over 6 points apart; 5 times were even, and at the very last in a rapidly failing light, Pope drew out 6 points ahead with 229 against Dorrlor's 222, not big shooting as both are out of practice, but with plenty of excitement on the wayside.

Mike isn't satisfied so there is another one coming. H. M. P.

The Philadelphia Rifle Association.

The weekly competitions of this Association were shot Saturday, August 12, on the Arlington range, Lansdowne Avenue and Cedar Lane, near Flanerch, Pa.

The cool weather brought out a fair number of shooters, including Dill, Schnerring, R. L. Dubbs, M. Forbes, D. Forbes, Bunton and Williamson. The feature of the shoot was Schnerring's score of 228 in the 50 shot Military Match, beating N. Sperring's score by one point. It is now up to Sperring to come out and make a 229 or better.

Some Record Shooting in Minnesota.

I notice your late issues give a large number of team scores for National Guard and Regulars but that most of these are for Eastern States. I wish to submit the following scores made at Camp Lakeview, Lake City, Minn., July 30th, in the Regimental Team Match between the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Regiments, 12 man teams. There are scores made in this match that I do not find duplicated in any late issues. 10 shots each 200, 600 and 1000, 200 Rf. and Sk.

Note the showing made by Company B with two third class men. I believe the score of 881 is a record for a company team match in the Northwest.

The score of Sergt. C. O. Peterson of 137 won for him the medal given for highest total aggregate score on these three ranges by the National Rifle Association.

I have been unable to find any score to beat the record of 919 points on the three ranges, ten shots for a seven man team made by Co. F, in the Company Team Match as shown above. This record is the highest in the Northwest and I know of none higher in the United States.

At 800 yards Co. F's team of 7 men made a total of 343 out of a possible 350 points, which I believe is very close to the world record.

Both pistol matches were finished this week and as usual, the Secretary got trimmed. The match between Miller and Biesel was interesting. Miler put it all over Biesel on the first leg and then lost the four other legs and still won the match.

Biesel .....	420	442	449	429	437	2177

The 500 shot match between Gray and Biesel was also concluded and once more the "Feed" is on "Little Jeff" at the following quotations:

Gray .....	841	849	844	883	876	4293
Biesel .....	840	855	833	861	866	4255

Next week we start a team shoot Miller & Joslin, of Providence vs. Gray and Biesel, of Newport, 300 shoots, each 10 shots to a match, best two out of three to win. - Here's hoping.

Golden Gate Revolver and Pistol Club.

For some reason or other the scores of the pistol and revolver match between the Los Angeles Revolver Club and the Golden Gate Rifle and Pistol Club which was shot on June 25, 1911, have never been published. We won this match by the narrow margin of four points and would like you to publish the scores in your paper as we know they will then reach everyone interested. We also hope for another match with the Los Angeles Club.

W. G. Hoffman made a score of 227 in the Golden Gate Club medal competition, and George A. Pattberg scored 226 in the same contest.

Lieut. J. F. Waters made five consecutive 24's out of as many twenty-fives, and a total score of 45 out of a possible 50 in the monthly medal shoot of Company A, Irish Volunteers.

Herman Enge made 204 points, the highest score in the competition of the San Francisco Turner Schuetzen.

Seven of the most popular shooting organizations held their monthly medal and bulls-eye competitions on the Shell Mound range yesterday, which brought out a large number of the expert marksmen from both sides of the bay, crowding the shooting-stands all day. # SMITH GUNS

HUNTER ONE-TRIGGER

CHOOOSE your gun as you would your hat—to fit you perfectly. It means higher scores and more birds. There is some rather wise advice on this point in our handsomely lithographed new Catalogue—and you may have it for the asking.

THE FIRST THING to remember, however, is that it does make a great deal of difference whether or not your gun fits you. The next thing to remember is that there is a Hammerless Smith Gun that does fit you better than any other gun in the world.

The most wonderful improvement in gun-making in the past fifty years is the Hunter One Trigger. It is just as great a boon to the professional as to the amateur sportsman. It spells accuracy to the highest degree.

The most wonderful advance in gun-making this year is the thoroughly tried and tested new 20-Gauge Hammerless Smith Gun—with or without the Hunter One-Trigger attachment. Weighs 5¼ to 7lbs. Just all gun and no frills. Ask about it today.

GOSSIP.

BY "LES SMOKE."

Maybe when some of C. C. Crossman's friends in the Mound City see his 91 score in the Wimbledon Cup Match at Camp Perry, maybe they won't think he is some shot with the military rifle! This performance was a mighty fine one and only once again demonstrates that it is possible for an expert with the short arm to become adept in the use of the military rifle.

Mrs. C. C. Crossman journeyed from St. Louis to Camp Perry and we shortly expect to see her at the pistol butts showing some of the male persuasion now it should be done. She is a mighty fine shot, as our readers well know, and they will be glad to learn that she is here.

The Warren Rifle and Revolver Club of Ohio continues to shoot indoors with the pistol and revolver. Should the club enter a team in the U. S. R. A. Indoor League this practice which they persist in with great regularity is going to tell. Clyde Osborn and C. M. Scott, were high with 216 out of a possible 250.

The 42nd Annual Shoot of the Southern New England Schuetzen Bund was a most successful affair. It was held in Springfield on August 14 and 15, under the auspices of the Springfield Schuetzenverein, a report of which appears in another portion of this paper. A lot of New Yorkers journeyed up from Manhattan Island and finished well up in the list.

The Providence, R. I., Revolver Club shot a match with the Taunton Rifle Club of Massachusetts, on August 12, on the 300-yard range and won with a margin of 15 points. It certainly looks good to see a lot of those old familiar names appear in print, and we hope to see them more often.

Down in Camp Perry way there are so many incidents happening which might possibly get by the man who is writing up the story of the big shoot that the scribe takes it upon himself to work in a few interesting bits, some of which have been told to him and others have come under his personal observation.

Peaches are ripe in Ohio and through the camp each day there come the energetic sons of the soil with farm-wagons laden with the luscious fruit. All along Commercial Row in each tent will be found the hustling trade representatives each with several baskets of peaches. You all know that there is a certain part of the peach which can't be eaten—that is the pit—and to dispose of this superfluous portion is a very serious question. While Colonel Bingham with an eye to the sanitary conditions of the camp was passing in the rear of Commercial Row one day he perceived that the street was literally paved with peach-stones. He made inquiries of the tradespeople and was informed that the name of the street was "Peach-pit Alley" and that they all were proud of the accomplishment of having neatly paved the thoroughfare. While Colonel Bingham appreciated the spirit which had prompted this missionary work, he realized the necessity for preserving sanitary conditions in a model camp. As unobtrusively as possible, so as not to offend the nice spirit behind his would-be benefactors, quartermaster wagons, detailed by the Ohio State Rifle Association, pass quietly up and down the deserted path devoted by day to the commercials, gathering up in the still night hours the decaying relics of the day's work.

The other day while moseying about the Ohio team's street, principally in quest of four of the Ohioans who had won five of the big

N. R. A. matches a few days before, we unexpectedly ran into Jack Semon, who had the most woe-begone expression on his face that we have ever seen. One side of Jack's face was all swollen up and we could hardly believe it was him, but a closer inspection convinced us that it was good old Jack. Naturally we asked him what the trouble was, and he told us how the ding-busted bolt of his beloved rifle had punished him all afternoon, and that was not all. For several days before that while coming out of his tent smoking his favorite pipe a sudden gust of wind had precipitated the ashes into his shooting eye which caused him great annoyance. Poor Jack is having real, sure enough hard luck, but at that has shot brilliantly in several matches.

THIS DEPARTMENT IS DEVOTED TO SHOTGUN SHOOTING IN ALL ITS BRANCHES. CORRESPONDENCE, SUGGESTIONS AND CRITICISMS ARE INVITED BY THE EDITOR, WHOSE PURPOSE IS TO SERVE THE READER WITH THE BEST THERE IS TO BE HAD ON THE SUBJECT.

The Western Handicap.

The Sixth Annual Western Handicap, which wound up an unprecedentedly successful three-days session in Omaha, Neb., Thursday afternoon, Aug. 12, is unanimously agreed by the big attendance of shooters here, to have been one of the grandest and most satisfactory trap meets ever held in the country. In fact, the consensus of opinion was that the famous Grand American has but precious little to boast of over the Western.

The tournament was held under the auspices of the time-honored Omaha Gun Club one of the most venerable organizations of the kind in America. The Omaha Club was organized some forty years ago—was one of the original hunting and shooting clubs of the country, and during all this prolonged period has been a live, healthful, high-class body, with many of the best and most illustrious citizens of Omaha and state on its member roll, and an institution that has always stood high in the esteem of the sportsmen throughout the country.

The Tournament in question was held at Townsend Park—the property of the Club—at the other end of the Big Bridge on the Iowa side of the turgid Missouri, and one of the most thoroughly appointed and most charming shooting grounds in the whole broad West.

The five traps faced the north, the most advantageous positions of all from the standpoint of the shooters, with well packed river sand stands at the scratch of each, back of which, say some twenty yards, are the lounging sheds, the commodious ammunition depots, the dining hall and quick lunch counter, screened Club apartments, with lockers, gun racks, showers and all other modern conveniences immediately available. In the right of the trap ground, and set back at a proper distance, were several big circus tents, erected for the benefit of the overflow gallery, while bordering each end on the east and west, groves of huge cotton woods cast their graceful shades, and lent a most entrancing aspect to the entire surroundings.

Elmer E. Shaner, the efficient and popular secretary of the Interstate Association, who had the general management of the Tournament in his hands, was much felicitated by the clever and capable corps of assistants the Omaha Club provided him. This corps consisted of the indispensable and inevitable Fred C. Whitney, of Des Moines, Ia., cashier; H. P. Jacobson, of San Francisco, Cal., compiler of scores, and innumerable messengers and pages. Working in conjunction with the Shaner's excellent force were George W. Loomis, the famed president of the Omaha Gun

Club, Frank T. Lovering, its always hustling secretary, and Billy Townsend, the treasurer, and probably one of the most favorably known sportsmen naturalists, and all-round shooting bon-vivants in the whole United States. With such a tout en semble of worthy workers, is it any wonder that this Sixth Western Handicap has taken a conspicuous niche in the annals of the Interstate Association?

Monday was the preliminary day—the day of practice—but from the hordes of jostling shooters, the enthusiasm and incessant bustle, one would have thought it one of the premier days of the Tournament. The preparatory card included a 100-target race and a baker's dozen or so of specials and individual tilts, and the attendance being wonderfully prolific, and the good natured rivalry intense, it was really a fine and dandy prelude to the big business of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The real thing opened up in a blaze of glory—furnished largely by a red-hot August sun—promptly on schedule time, 9 A. M. and there was but the luncheon cessation until the shades of evening became so thick that it was impossible to go further. Yet the full card men completed, the regular 150 birds, and the special of 25 doubles.

While the average of the day was in no-wise sensational, it was remarkably satisfactory, and of the 195 men who toed the scratch, there was not one who claimed that he had not had a run for his money.

In the professional class, Homer Clark, of Alton, Ills., was high cockalorum, finishing his string with a single miss, the 147th bird, the record for the straight run.

George P. White, of Watertown, S. D., was Clark's companion in the honor copping business. He atomized 147 out of his 150 targets, smashing the last 90 without a "bobble." White is the reputed champion of South Dakota which he has held for three years consecutively, his average being 95 per cent.

There were 59 contestants in the double events, and old Billy Crosby of O'Fallon, Ills., ran away with the professional honors, 47 out of 50, while J. S. Young, of Chicago, did likewise to the amateurs, 45 out of the 50.

On the second day there were exactly 200 shooters in the big event, and while the conditions were much harder than on the initial day, the scores were much better. There was a stiff breeze blowing from early morn till late in the afternoon, and coming transversely across the range from the northeast, made the shooting peculiarly difficult, but at that both professionals and amateurs fairly out-did themselves.

The gallery was very large, and while not one contestant got away with the straight, W. H. Clay, an East St. Louis amateur, beat them all, dropping his 115th target only. This with his unbroken run on the opening day, gave him a run of 170. It was not the luck of Mr. Clay, as Kipling would put it, but the "Lily Whites" generally outshot the veterans in the professional ranks.

Potter White, of Watertown, S. D., was right on the heels of the leader, his shooting being fine and dandy from start to finish, and finishing with 148, of which 109 were pulverized straight. In the immediate society of this pair, was Jesse Young, John Noel, Riley Thompson and Billy Townsend. Riley Thompson, it will be recalled won the Grand American at Chicago last year with 100 straight on the 19 yard mark.

Billy Crosby, Fred Bills and Fred Gilbert, came the nearest to sustaining the professional reputation, while one-arm Maxwell, C. G. Spencer, and Billy Herr were always good.

The last day, the day of the Handicap, was ideal, with a gentle breeze from the south, and all the conditions harmonizing in favor of good scores, which were prolific, especially so far as the forenoon program was concerned. This consisted of five 20-target events, all of which were completed before noon. The shooting generally throughout these events was excellent, the amateurs vieing with the professionals for the honor. They fell finally to J. S. Day, of Memphis, Tenn., completing the entire program without a loss, 100 straight. This is not the first time Jim Day has distinguished himself, for he was high amateur for 1910. The next best pros were F. G. Bills, Kansas City, W. R. Crosby, O'Fallon, Ills., and Billy Heer, Guthrie, Okla., with 99 each.

The best the "Lily Whites" could perpetrate was 99, there being five entrants with this record as follows: A. C. Connors, Springfield, Ills., C. H. Ditto, Keithsburg, Ills., J. S. Young, Chicago, Ills., E. J. Chingren, Spokane, Wash., N. D. Thorpe, Columbus, Nebr., and Fred Call, Kingston, Nebr.

The big Handicap was called by Manager Shaner, at 2 o'clock sharp, with 188 entrants some dozen or less than was indicated on the sheet the previous evening. As the shooters lined up the wind shifted to the northeast, and coming at cyclonic gate across the grounds, made the shooting exceedingly difficult. At that, the work as a whole was most commendable. Billy Ridley, of What-Cheer, Ia., and PETERS regular length shells, with regular wadding, give perfect pattern to any distance from 16 to 23 yards. Harvey Dixon won the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP with them, June 24, 1911, from 20 yards—the first time this great event was ever won from this distance. Remember, too, that PETERS SHELLS will shoot 100 per cent in any standard make of gun—no special combination necessary.

Clyde Collins, of Aldine, Ind., getting out with 98 each for the big money and the diamond medal. Darkness, however, prevented a completion of the Handicap, and it was postponed until 9 o'clock Friday morning.

The ten unfinished squads were at the scratch on schedule time, and finished up the whole business by ten o'clock. While there were several possibilities they all fell down, leaving Ridley and Collins to shoot off their tie for the big honor. They shot it off in strings of 20 targets, and the first string resulted in a tie—19 each, Collins missing his fifth and Ridley his fifteenth. The second string went straight to Ridley, Collins missing his first and second, and thus the Sixth Western Handicap came to a most glorious termination.

The high averages among the professionals, outside of the Handicap itself, were Homer Clark, Alton, Ills., and W. R. Crosby, O'Fallon, Ills., a tie at 393, a high record. W. H. Heer, Guthrie, Okla., and Chas. G. Spenser, St. Louis Mo., second a tie at 392. F. G. Bills, Kansas City, Mo., third, 390.

The top-notch amateurs were Potter White, Watertown, S. D., 392, first; J. S. Young, Chicago, Ills., 392, second; Riley Thompson, Gainsville, Mo., 390, third.

Mr. E. C. CROSSMAN

The Greatest American Firearms Authority and Critic, ENDORSES THE SAVAGE!

EVERY reader of ARMS AND THE MAN knows that Mr. Crossman KNOWS! In an article entitled "The Automatic Pistol" in "The Outer's Book" for June, 1911, at page 616, he says:

"Of all arms built for pocket use—arms purely for self-defense—the Savage is unquestionably the nearest to perfection. For an arm on which to stake my life I would unquestionably take the Savage on account of its perfect lines.

"The Savage people use a cut of their pistol being pointed as compared with the revolver. Like other cynical cranks, I read this ad with chucklings as another example of the advertising man's imagination. Then I apologized to the Savage layout—mentally. The blame gun does point straight in the dark, and it does it every time. The lines are such that if the forefinger is pointed straight—a simple process—the barrel of the Savage is likewise directed to the mark. It is wonderful.

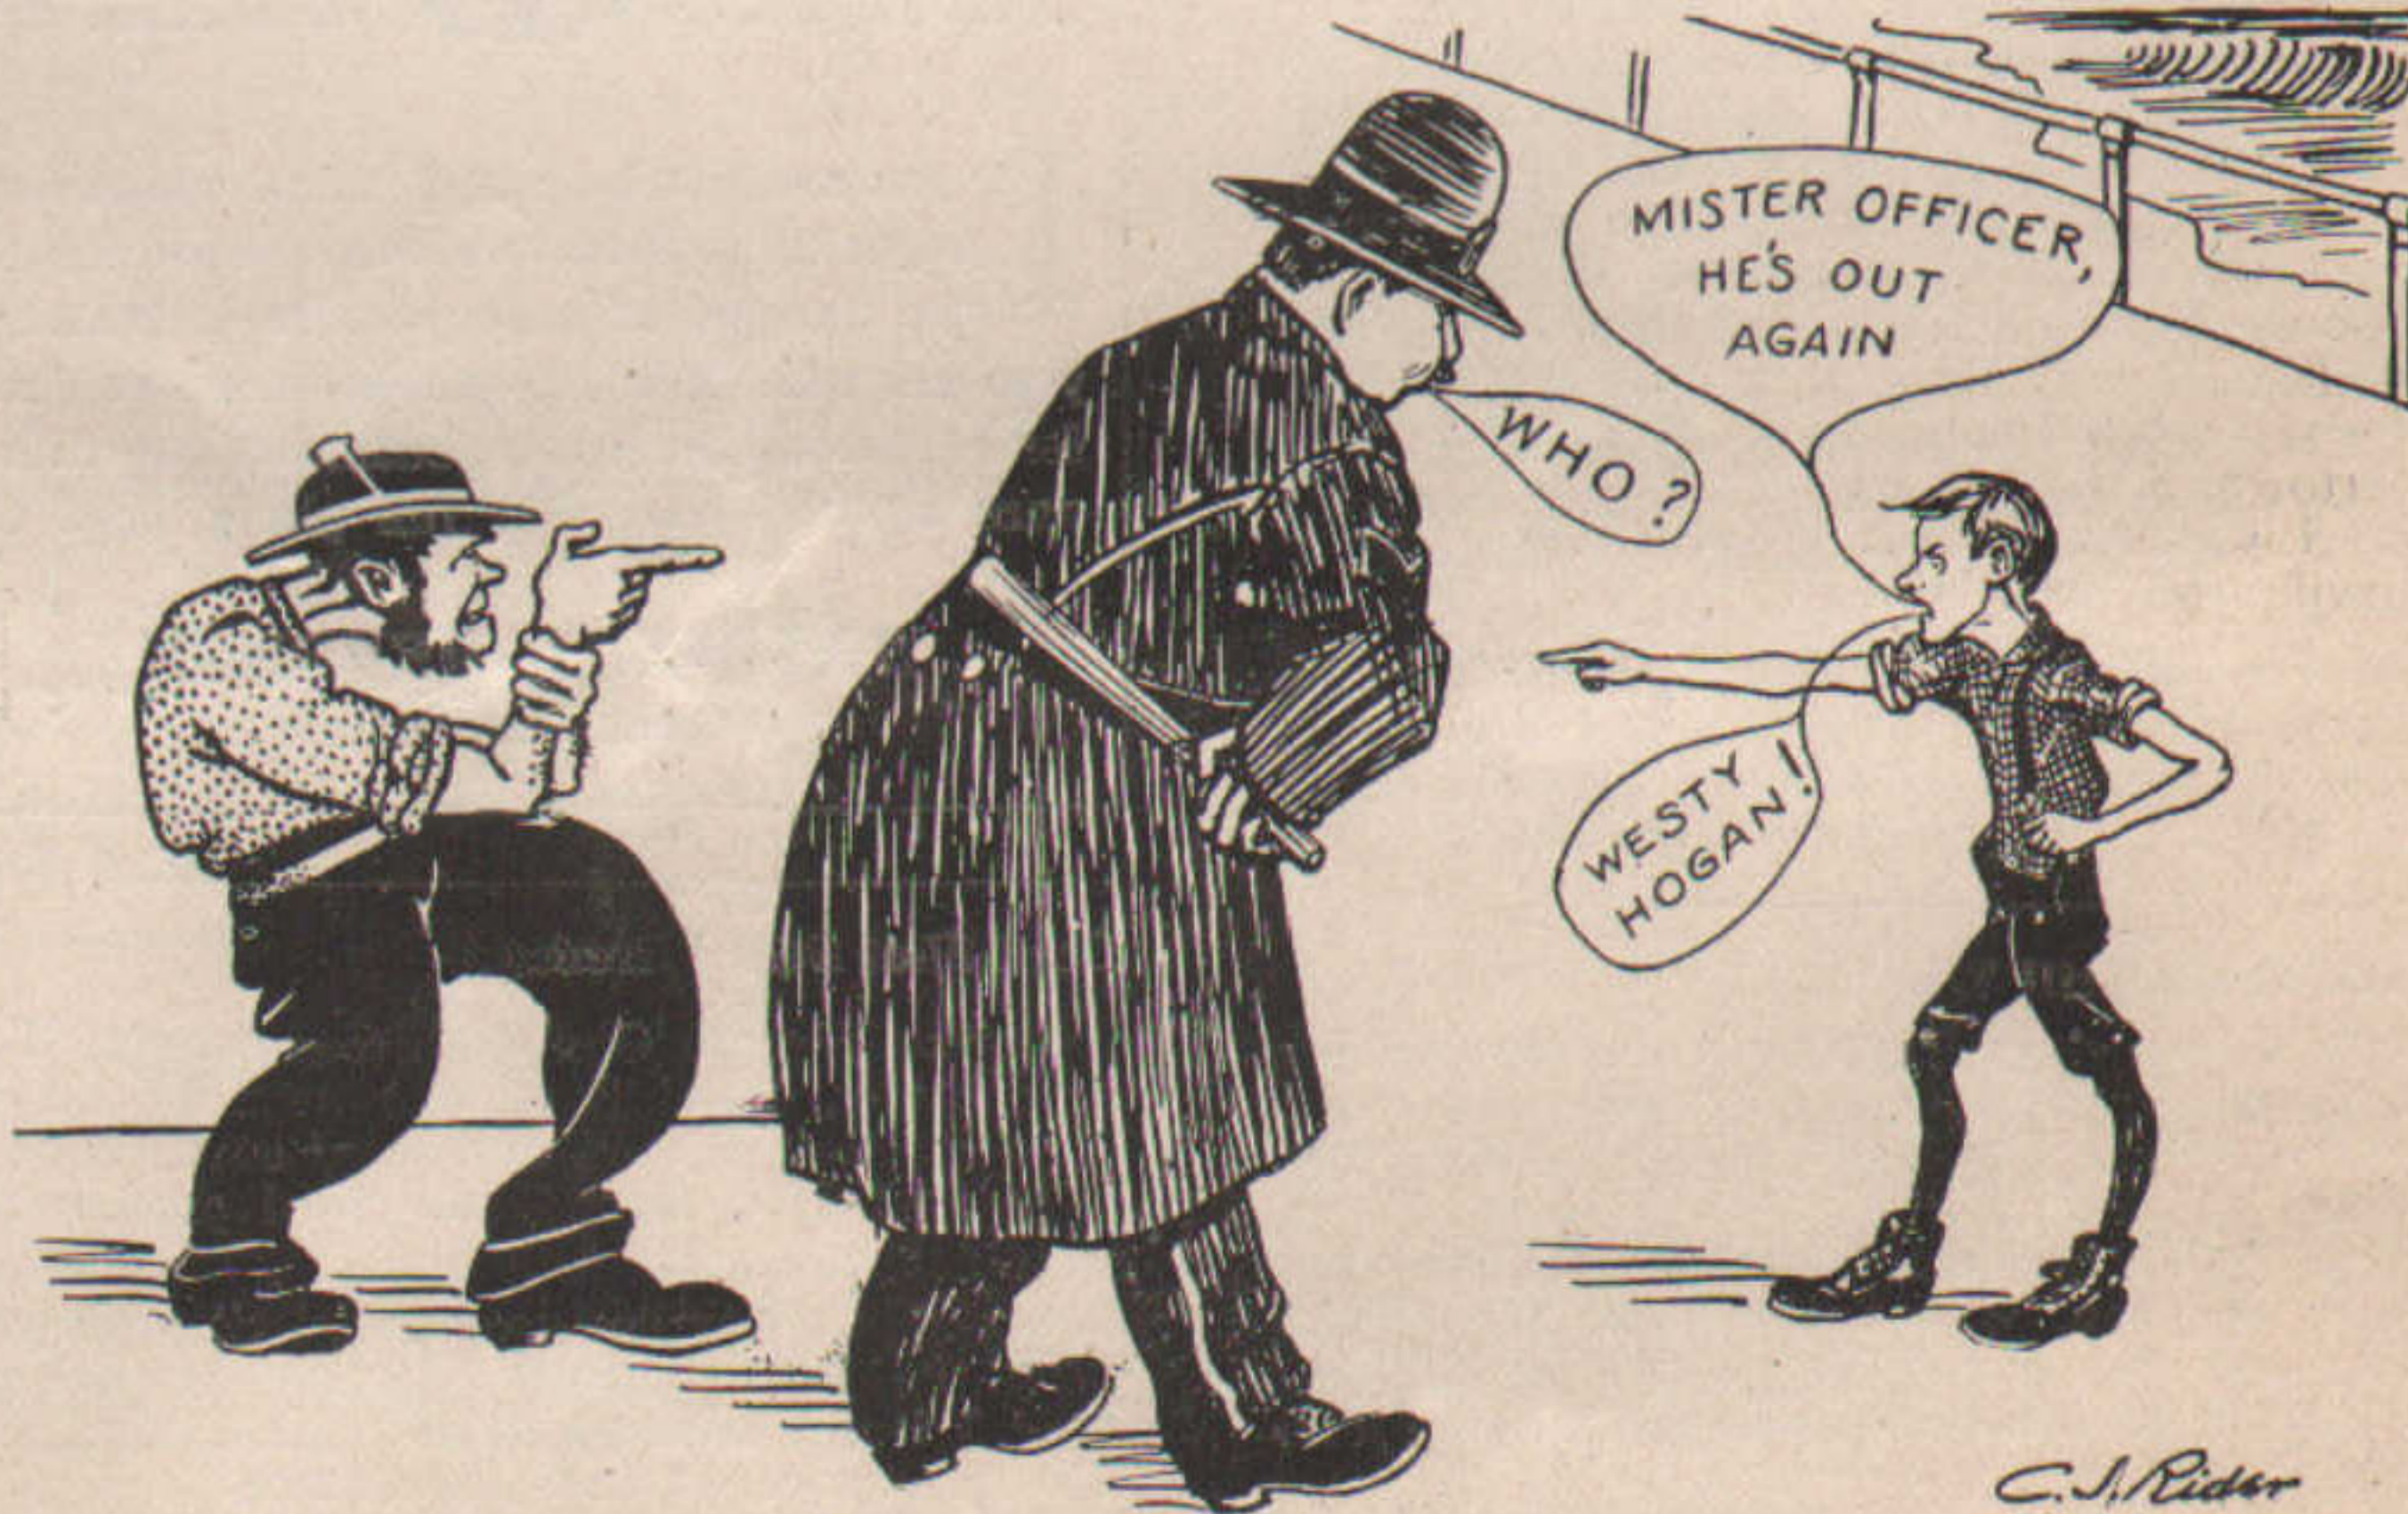

"My own Savage has a good clean six pound pull, light enough for an arm of self-defense, and clean enough for good work on the target. And good work can be done with this pistol at fifty yards, although it is not built for target shooting.

"For all-round use in the hands of the man who is not a target shooting crank I would unhesitatingly recommend the Savage .32 gun."

From every point of view the most respected authorities—Mr. Crossman, the distinguished technical expert, author and critic; Maj. Richard Sylvester, Pres. International Assn. of Police Chiefs; Mr. Wm. Pinkerton, of the Pinkerton Nat. Detective Agency; and Mr. William J. Burns, of the Burns & Sheridan Nat. Detective Agency, the hero of the Los Angeles "Times" Building explosion; admittedly our most eminent detectives and police officials; and Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), Dr. W. F. Carver and Mr. W. B. (Bat) Masterson, the best known "gun-play" artists, endorse the Savage as the most perfect defensive weapon on earth.
